

1. Number of memory access in each thread is 2
Number of floating point computation is 1

Therefore, the ratio of memory-access to floating-point computation is 2:1

Further, total number of memory access is $2N$
Total number of floating point computation is N

So the ration of all the memory-access to all floating-point computation is also 2:1